BAIL WAS REFUSED.

County Judge Hargis, Sheriff Callahan, Elbert Hargis.

Indicted Men Will be Allowed to Have a Trial Next Week.

Lexington, Ky., March 27. Judge Watts Parker, sitting in the criminal division of the Fayette circuit court, to-day handed down a decision overruling the motion for bail in the case of James Hargis, the county judge, and Edward Callahan, the sheriff of Breathitt county, and Elbert Hargis and remanded them to jail to await their trial for the murder of James Cockrell. In the case of A. H. Hargis, former state senator, the court admitted him to bail in the sum of $15,000.

The court delivered an oral opinion on the motion, reciting the conditions existing in Breathitt county at the time of the murder of Cockrell and said he believed it a matter the State should thoroughly investigate. He said he would allow the indicted men to have a trial as soon as they were ready and would devote as much time as was necessary to the case.

He said he would allow bail to the defendant Alex H. Hargis on the ground that it had been established that he was not in Jackson the day of the shooting and had not been there for several days.

Shortly after the announcement of Judge Parker's decision, Alex Hargis furnished the $15,000 bond and was released. Gus Straus, John Flood, J. F. Vanderen and Joseph Skain being his bondsmen. He will return to his home at Winchester.

Judge Hargis is still judge of Breathitt county, and the question arose as to who would set in his stead in the event bail was refused. Breck Combs, of Breathitt, was recently appointed magistrate of that county and to-day Judge Hargis requested him to hold the term of county court for him which will convene next week.

After the question of bail had been decided the attorneys of the defense asked the court to set a date for the trial of the case. After consultation it was decided that both sides could be ready by Tuesday of next week, April 4, and the case was set for trial on that date. The court ordered the jury commissioners to meet Thursday and place five hundred additional names in the jury wheel.

All four of the defendants are jointly indicted and they may be tried together or may demand separate trials. In the latter event the Commonwealth may elect which one shall be tried first.

BAD FIRE AVERTED.

Bucket Brigade Assisted by Hand Fire Extinguishers Does Effective Work.

At a late hour Monday afternoon Hartford's fire department, in its full capacity, was called into action. The fire which, when first discovered, bid fair to be one of the most destructive town has known for some time, originated in Mr. L. T. Barnard's meat house from the fire he had there for the purpose of smoking meat.

The meat house is in the back yard and within six or seven feet of his shed room or kitchen and when first observed the fire had gained such headway that the whole interior of the building was a solid sheet of flames and in some of the weaker places in the boxing the fire had already burned its way through.

Some one gave the alarm, the Court House bell was rung and in from three to ten minutes the premises were "alive" with citizens from every section of town with their hand fire extinguishers and buckets of water all of which were turned on the angry flames and in less time than it took the crowd to gather in the fire was completely under control.

The dwelling of Mr. Barnard was in the greatest of danger and it took hard work to keep it from taking fire, the weather boarding and roof was considerably scorched. Sam Anderson's dwelling was also in much danger and the dispatch with which the work of quieting the flames was done probably saved his house as well as others.

Hartford's fire department though in a primitive State was completely successful as it usually is.

Hartford Hustling Club Plays at McHenry.

A. and has been in existence a little over six months. Right living, to increase and maintain a vital interest in their Sunday meetings, to have plenty of wholesome fun, and to help where help is needed is some of their objects. COSTLY ANGER.

Union County Farmer Finds Revenge Expensive.

He Pays $2,500 in Damages Including Fine for Shooting a Teacher.

Morganfield, Ky., Mar. 25. James Fletcher, the farmer who shot Claude Buchanan because the latter whipped his daughter while she attended the school taught by Buchanan last spring, was fined $400 in the circuit court here to-day. Fletcher's free use of his gun has cost him about $2,500.

At the last meeting of the court Buchanan secured a judgment of $2,500 against Fletcher for personal injuries. The judgment was compromised by Fletcher paying over $1,250 to the schoolteacher.

Last spring Buchanan was teaching a country school in this county and two daughters of Fletcher were among his pupils. He found it necessary to use corporal punishment on one of them to maintain order. After feeling the sting of the birch the girl with her sister left the school and went home. They told their father and he was so infuriated that he at once went to the schoolhouse. In the quarrel Buchanan was shot in the face by Fletcher.

The farmer was indicted. Buchanan filed a suit for $10,000 damages against Fletcher and the farmer and his daughter filed counter suits for damages against the teacher.

One of Fletcher's attorneys stated to-day that the shooting and law suits with the fine to-day had cost the farmer in the neighborhood of $2,500.

OPPOSE POOLING PLAN.

Hancock County Farmers Will Hold Their Tobacco For Better Prices.

Hawesville, Ky., March 25.—At a meeting of delegates from all the A. S. of E. lodges in the county the proposition to pool tobacco on a warehouse plan similar to that in vogue in Owensboro was voted down almost unanimously. A representative of the Louisville Warehouse company was here and presented the proposition and explained details, but it did not please the tobacco growers of this county.

A resolution rejecting the proposition was passed and also one just as heartily deciding to hold on to the tobacco until better prices can be obtained. It was also decided to institute a method by which the farmers could help those needing assistance until such time as they could sell to advantage.

Stratton-Gary.

T. Wade Stratton, of near Hartford, was united in marriage Tuesday to Miss Violet Gary, of Louisville. The ceremony took place at the home of Esq. J. A. Park. Rev. J. W. Cantrill, No creek, performed the ceremony in the presence of a few immediate friends of the young people.

Mr. Stratton is a successful young teacher. He is now finishing up a business course in the Bowling Green Business College. In whatever field of endeavor his ambition may lead him, he is sure to succeed.

Miss Gary is a young lady of rare beauty and loveliness, and was of course a society favorite.

The young people left immediately for Louisville where they will visit relatives of the bride. After a few weeks stay in the city they will reside in Bowling Green until Mr. Stratton shall have completed his work in school.

CATARRH THE MOST DANGEROUS OF ALL CHRONIC DISEASES.

"Pe-ru-na is a Blessing to Those Troubled With Catarrh," Says United States Senator Corbin.

Ex. U.S. Senator
D.Y. Corbin.

Gentlemen—"The use of Pe-ru-na has been a blessing to those troubled with catarrh. So many of my acquaintances have been cured and benefited by its use that its curative qualities should be generally known. I do not hesitate to recommend it as the best remedy yet discovered for that disease."—D. Y. Corbin, 916 Chicago Opera House, Chicago, Ill.

Colds Not Promptly Cured Are Sure to Cause Catarrh.

Catarrh Improperly Treated is Sure to Make Life Short and Miserable.

Many Wonderful Cures Are Made by Pe-ru-na.

CATARRH spares no organ or function of the body. It is capable of destroying sight, taste, smell, hearing, digestion, secretion, assimilation and excretion. It pervades every part of the human body.

Pe-ru-na also cures bronchitis, coughs, and consumption in the first stages with unfailing certainty.

Hon. D. Y. Corbin, is ex-United States Senator and cousin of Adjutant General Corbin of the United States Army. Judge Corbin is one of the best known lawyers in Chicago and stands high professionally and socially. The above endorsement coming from such a man cannot help but add weight and importance to the thousands of testimonials from the humbler walks of life.

Catarrh is the cause of at least one-half of the ills to which the human family is subject. Is there no way to escape from it? There is.

Pe-ru-na never fails to cure a cold. Pe-ru-na never fails to cure catarrh in the first stage. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh in the second stage, nine cases out of ten. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh in its last and worst stages in the majority of cases, and never fails to benefit every case, however bad.

"My Life Hung by a Mere Thread, Pe-ru-na Cured Me."

Mrs. Sarah Smart, 278 Hayward St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"I can't tell in words how low I was. My life hung by a mere thread. I was waiting for months to die."

"My trouble was consumption or bronchitis. I suffered no pain when I was low, but coughing and breathing kept sapping what little strength I had. I could not eat, sleep or even lean back on a chair. I was a mere skeleton. I said to my husband, 'I can't last much longer.' My neighbors say they do not know how I ever recovered. It was almost a miracle."

"I took your medicine but three months, when I could do my housework and washing, and have been doing it ever since. Now I am able to do anything. You would never think I had been troubled with such a serious illness. I shall always keep your medicine in my house."—Mrs. Sarah Smart.

Despaired of Recovery.

Mrs. R. L. Aulick, Vice President American Genealogical Association, 604 11 street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I know whereof I speak when I say that Pe-ru-na is a wonderful remedy for colds and catarrh trouble. Last fall I was very much debilitated from the effect of a cold contracted early in the summer and which I neglected. I knew that my system was in need of medicine and rest, but to find the right thing was the problem. Happily I gave Pe-ru-na a trial first and have no reason to complain of the results. Within a month I had entirely recovered my strength and good health and really felt better and stronger than before."—Mrs. R. L. Aulick.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Pe-ru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

BLOODY TRAGEDY.

Girl Fatally Shoots Fiancee, who Wrests Revolver from Her and Mortally Wounds Her.

Somerset, Ky., March 27.—Death may place his seal upon the lives of two of this city's best known young people and put a most dramatic close to what was, in its incipency, merely a lovers' quarrel.

Sunday afternoon Mack Tate called at the home of Miss Minerva Dobson, to whom he was affianced. Within a short time the two had a misunderstanding, which quickly ripened into a bitter quarrel. Stung to the quick by the hot words that had passed between them, the girl sprang to a table and, picking up a revolver, opened fire on her lover. The bullet passed through Tate's abdomen and lodged in his body.

Despite his serious wound, the young man grappled with his sweetheart and after a struggle wrenched the smoking gun from her. He then deliberately stepped back and opened fire on her, emptying the remaining contents of the revolver into her body. One shot shattered her right arm, another took effect in the other arm and the third pierced her head.

It is believed that Miss Dobson cannot live, while Tate's wound is such that his death is likely to occur.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

Hypnotized Each Other Both Asleep Thirteen Days.

Attention of the Medical World is Centered on the Remarkable Cases.

New York, March 25.—Mutual Hypnotism is the cause assigned by Dr. Paul Allen, who occupies the chair of materia medica in the New York Homeopathic College, for the strange sleep, now lasting 13 days, of Mrs. James H. Heustis and her daughter, Luella.

The two women lie in their deep trance at the Presbyterian Hospital, and until the suggestion exercised by each upon the other is broken, neither will awaken, according to the alienist.

"Very likely," said Dr. Allen, "the woman has hypnotized the other. This would open the way on auto-suggestion, and the circuit would be complete."

"Often such patients may be awakened by outside suggestion, stronger than that exercised upon each other. For instance, in a case of hypero-epilepsy, the patient might be told that boiling water was to be poured upon him. When cold water is then dashed upon the body the suggestion that it is boiling water revives the patient."

In other words the minds of the two women in perfect sympathy mutually react, making the sleep deeper, as it progresses.

There are few cases like that of the two patients. For 13 days they have lain motionless. It is quite possible that both hear and understand what is going on around them without the power to express themselves by the slightest movement of a muscle.

Food is forced down their throats, the swallowing muscles being powerless. This food consists of eggs beaten up in milk, and its nutritive power is sufficient to keep the two alive.

Up to a late hour to-day neither showed signs of awakening. It is probable that both will recover consciousness at the same time, unless the sleep ends in death. In that case Dr. Allen's remarkable diagnosis will be almost proved.

The attention of the medical world is centered on the curious case. Physicians generally scout the idea that the coma is the result of the gas poisoning to which both had been subjected. Either it would have ended in death days ago, or the effects would have worn off, is the unanimous opinion.

Dr. Fisher, who has charge of the cases, said that a case so prolonged was extremely unusual. The daughter, he said, showed a slight fever, but the mother's temperature is normal. The bodily functions of both are perfectly normal, with the exception of rise in the temperature in the younger woman.

TWENTY YEARS' SLEEP.

Rip Van Winkle's Case May Have Been More Fact Than Fiction.

Even superstitious students of folklore know that the tale of Rip Van Winkle, supposing that Irving really heard it in the old Dutch settlement along the Hudson, is by no means peculiar to that district, but is found in some form or other all over the world. In other words, the idea that it is possible for a human being to survive in a state of unconsciousness for a very long time would seem to be either a universal fancy or to be founded on actual experience. Dr. Isaac Hayes is the Paris Bulletin of the Academy of Medicine reports such an experience, the case of a woman who actually did, so far as intelligent consciousness was concerned, sleep almost exactly twenty years.

The patient, of a neurotic and hysterical family, had always been delicate and nervous. On May 31, 1883, she was seriously frightened and fell into violent hysteria, which after twenty-four hours passed into unconsciousness. In this condition, interrupted every month or six weeks by sudden convulsive attacks she lay until May 23, 1903, kept alive entirely by injections of nourishment.

On May 23 she was seized with hysteria similar to that at the beginning of her sleep, and the next day there was another convulsion. On May 25 she began definitely to recover consciousness and by the next day was able to speak intelligently of events before her sleep and could also remember from day to day since her sleep, such as the drawing of her teeth, she knew nothing. On the evening of May 28 she died peacefully.

The particular case is of interest chiefly to the medical profession, but the general fact of survival in unconsciousness for a very long time shows how such tales as those of the Sleeping Beauty, the Seven Sleepers of Ephesus and Rip Van Winkle, to mention only the most familiar examples, could have originated from actual experience and observation. Very likely such cases occurred more than once.

"Truth is stranger than fiction," runs the old saying. It is undoubtedly more correct to say that fiction is merely enlarged, reduced, destroyed and otherwise decorated fact and that without a fact within general knowledge from which to start fiction could not exist. It is entirely safe to conjecture that at some prehistoric period, sleeping not out of doors, of course, but under shelter, and for many weeks and probably months, if not years, there was a Rip Van Winkle.

Are You Engaged?

Engaged people should remember, that, after marriage, many quarrels can be avoided, by keeping their digestions in good condition with Electric Bitters. S. A. Brown, of Bennington, S. C., says: "For years, my wife suffered intensely from dyspepsia, complicated, with a torpid liver, until she lost her strength and vigor, and became a mere wreck of her former self. Then she tried Electric Bitters, which helped her at once, and finally made her entirely well. She is now strong and healthy." Z. Postmaster General has put the Fourth-Class Postmasters Under the Civil Service

Washington, March 25.—Postmaster General Cortelyou has created a sensation among Republican politicians by his policy in regard to filling the office of fourth-class Postmasters. He has decided, after a conference with the President, that all these places, numbering 71,000 shall be placed under a practical form of Civil Service. All Postmasters who have made good records will be retained.

The news has been handed out to Senators and Representatives who have called on the new Postmaster-General during the past few days to press the claims of applicants. It also has been sent to every quarter of the country in letters from Mr. Cortelyou to politicians seeking appointments in the postal service for faithful workers.

Politicians gradually are awakening to a realization that what amounts to the most sweeping Civil order since the enactment of the Civil Service act has been quietly put into effect. Practically the last bit of patronage remaining outside of the classified service has been taken away from them.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

International Lesson for Sunday April 2 Briefly Discussed

[Lesson, 1 John 3:18.]

Jesus had lately used those indispensable, "light" and "water," as emblems of His office and function. He now employs a new figure, almost as familiar, for Hebrews were always a pastoral folk. This, with the story of the Vine and Branches (chapter xv), is said to be the only instance of allegory in the New Testament.

The Jewish church had grown into a great ecclesiastical establishment, furnishing numerous offices of honor, power and emolument. These were naturally sought by the ambitious, and held tenaciously by the successful. One object of this allegory is to set forth the character of these mercenaries. Like thieves, they have effected an entrance in such a way that their true character has not been discovered. But, though they have obtained the garb of office, they do not have the following of the true members. The latter, instead of following, flee, and do not hear them. The character of these false shepherds is further delineated. They work havoc in the highest interests of men. They steal, kill and destroy in the realm of spiritual value. Their purely mercenary spirit is indicated by the epithet, "hireling." In any final crisis, when the very life of those whom they save is at stake, they would fly like arrant cowards. Thus, with steady and courageous hand, Jesus held the mirror before the hierarchy of His day.

On the dark background of the false shepherd Jesus now projects the ideal of the true. He is one who enters upon His foundation of the appointed way. The Holy Spirit (the porter) approves; the church recognizes Him (the sheep hear His voice). His life is spent in care of the flock; He calleth, leadeth, putteth forth, goes before.

Jesus makes a decided turn in the allegory when he declares Himself to be "the Door." Entrance to the church is by the Person or work of Jesus. As the eastern sheepfold has but one door, so the church has none other than Christ. "There is none other name under heaven given among men." Through Him we come to salvation and spiritual sustenance (find pasture) and the more abundant life.

Again, there are shepherds and shepherds, but Jesus is preeminently the Shepherd. The evidence of this is His untiring surrender of life and the reciprocal and perfect recognition subsisting between shepherd and sheep—analogue to that which maintains between father and son.

Finally, Jesus bursts the shell of Jewish sectarianism in the generous and courageous words, "Other sheep I have which are not of this fold." It was a hint of this kind which had led these sectarists, on a former occasion, to ask scornfully, "Will He go and teach the Gentiles?" Alas! how they did "dissolve the pearl of charity in the acid of sect." The "one Shepherd," exalts person above institutions, when He says there shall be "one flock," not "one fold," as in the Authorized Version, which gives precisely the opposite sense. The reference is to the invisible church made up of the faithful of every age and land.

The First Kiss.

The greatest surprise to a girl who gets kissed the first time is that there is no taste to it. Waterloo Times.

No taste to it? Well by the hen feathers in Cupid's dart, but the Times must be colorblind in the palate! they tell us those who have tried it—that it tastes like a double distilled essence of honey spread thick upon a piece of pumpkin. Away back in the dim and joyful years before we lost our teeth and our chin on the beauty prize the prettiest girl in all the world told us with her own eyes that it felt like a covey of quails flying out of each ear and ended up with a sensation like a flock of angels putting molasses down one's back. No taste to the first kiss? Great Scott! It would make a wooden Indian's hair curl up and his toe nails quiver in ecstasy! The Times man must be an ice house! Ex.

ALL GOOD LIVERS.

Every One of the Presidents Had His Favorite Tip-ple:

[Chicago Chronicle.]

From the standpoint of the Prohibitionist none of the Presidents has been strictly a "temperance man." Grant was fond of whisky punch and champagne. Johnson preferred Robertson county (Tennessee) whisky. Jackson drank rum, brandy, whisky or applejack.

All of the Presidents up to Van Buren indulged in liquors and Madeira wine. Polk, Hayes and William Henry Harrison used liquors less than the others; yet all three knew good grog when they tasted it. The later Harrison, like Presidents Arthur and Grant, was appreciative of John Chamberlain's famous apple toddy.

Garfield was fond of fine wines and once in a while indulged in brandy and ice. Lincoln also took a "snifter" of Bourbon occasionally, and enjoyed a glass or so of sherry or port. Buchanan took to Monongahela whisky, and was fond of fine wines. Pierce enjoyed a glass of rum, brandy or whisky, and was happy over a mint julep on a hot summer afternoon.

Arthur was a connoisseur, and partook generally of all good liquors and wines. Taylor and Fillmore were fond of a glass of good Madeira or brandy.

All the Presidents were good liveries, although Polk, Hayes, Lincoln and Johnson cared only for "good, square meals."

All of them up to Van Buren's time played loo and brag. Poker was unknown in those days. Jackson was fond of whist. Grant played euchre and poker. Lincoln's favorite game was "old sledge." Pierce was fond of "bluff" and seven up. Polk, Hayes, Garfield and the Harrisons never played.

Johnson did not know one card from another, never used tobacco in any form and was never in a theater or at a horse race in his life.

Lincoln was fond of the theater. He once said that he was particularly fond of the "Merry Wives of Windsor," with Hackett as Falstaff; of Murdock's rendition of "Hamlet;"

of Kean's Richard, and that he regarded "Macbeth" as Shakespeare's greatest work.

TO BUILD OCEAN HOTEL.

Ship Like Spanish Galleon Will Be the Home of a California Hostelry.

An ocean hotel, built in the style of the Spanish galleons of the fifteenth century, says the New York Press, is one of the latest additions planned for the city of Venice, a new resort that has been opened on the California coast, and both in appearance and intention it will be unique. The high, square stern and bulging bow, the tapering masts with their quaint and clumsy sails, the decks and outward appointments, all will be faithful reproductions of the ships that first crossed the Atlantic and discovered America. Inside of the vessel will be fitted up with all the luxurious appointments of a modern Atlantic liner.

She is to be called the Cabrillo, in honor of the discoverer of the Pacific, and it will be a strange case of the old world come back to revisit the new when she lies out in the bay under full sail. She is 182 feet long, with a beam of 50 feet, and on her construction alone $50,000 is being spent. The furnishing and interior equipments will bring the total cost up to three times that sum. She will not be called upon to make any venturesome voyages, however, for she is to rest on piles 300 feet from the shore.

To board her visitors will walk along the wide pleasure pier that already has been built and from it a wide gangway with handrails on both sides will lead to her main deck. This will be given up to a large and handsomely furnished saloon, a spacious dining-room and suites of apartments provided with every convenience that can be found in hotel on shore.

There also will be the kitchen, a chief's home far different from the gallery that any old Spanish ship knew. A grand staircase will lead down to the lower deck, where a large number of bedrooms, arranged like cabins, will be provided. There will be more cabins on the upper deck and an attractive drawing-room for ladies, while promenades will be laid out on the fore-castle, the deckhouse and the poop deck. Provision will be made for dancing and pleasure parties and for concerts and theatrical entertainments.

To keep up the illusion of old Spain among it all, the manager of the Cabrillo, with all his assistants, cabin boys and waiters, will be dressed in full Spanish uniform, glittering with gilt and emeralds.

Roosevelt on Home Life.

Following are extracts from an address by President Roosevelt, before the triennial convention of the National Congress of Mothers, held in Washington, D. C., recently:

"No ordinary work done by a man is either as hard or as responsible as the work of a woman who is bringing up a family of small children; for upon her time and strength demands are made not only every hour of the day but often every hour of the night.

"No piled up wealth, no splendor of material growth, no brilliance of artistic development, will permanently avail any people unless its home life is healthy.

"The primary duty of the husband is to be the home-maker, the breadwinner for his wife and children, and the primary duty of the woman is to be the helpmeet, the housewife and mother.

"The way to give a child a fair chance in life is not to bring it up in luxury, but to see that it has the kind of training that will give it strength of character.

"Just as the happiest and most honorable and most useful task that can be set any man is to earn for the support of his wife and his family, for the bringing up and starting in life of his children, so the most desirable task which beset any woman is to be a good and wise mother in a home marked by self-respect and mutual forbearance, by willingness to perform duty, and by refusal to sink into self-indulgence or avoid that which entails effort or self-sacrifice.

"But the man or woman who deliberately foregoes these blessings (of raising children) whether from viciousness, coldness, shallow heartedness, self-indulgence or mere failure to appreciate right the differ-

It is much easier for a woman to confide in the average man than in the average woman. She knows that the man will respect her confidences and keep them to himself. He is strong, has more experience of the world and can help the woman who needs advice. There is every reason why women should not trust their delicate constitutions in the hands of unskilled persons. It requires a thorough medical education to appreciate and understand the womanly organism. When a woman has the pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for every woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or one who has a national reputation. Certainly it would not be the part of wisdom to confide in an ignorant person without medical education simply because she was a woman. There is every reason why she should write to some great specialist, one who has made the diseases of women a specialty for a third of a century, like Dr. R. V. Pierce, founder of the 'Invaluable' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All his correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and he gives his advice free and without charge.

So uniformly successful has Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription proven in all forms of Female Weakness, Protrusion, or Falling of Womb, and Leucorrhoea, that, after curing the worst cases of these distressing and debilitating ailments, Dr. Pierce now feels fully warranted in offering to pay $50 in cash for any case of these diseases which he cannot cure.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets should be used with 'Favorite Prescription' whenever a laxative is required.

ence between the all-important and the unimportant why, such a creature merits contempt as hearty as any visited upon the soldier who runs away in battle, or upon the man who refuses to work for the support of those dependent upon him, and who, though able-bodied, is yet content to eat in idleness the bread which others provide."

Got Off Cheap.

He may well think, he has got off cheap, who, after having contracted constipation or indigestion, is still able to perfectly restore his health. Nothing will do this but Dr. King's New Life Pills. A quick pleasant, and certain cure for headache, constipation, etc. 25c at Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro's. drug store; guaranteed.

An Obstinate Lunatic.

Leroy M. Taylor, of Washington, who devoted many years to the study of insanity, used to say that the invincible obstinacy of insanity was what interested him in connection with the subject. He once knew an insane chemist who insisted that he was dead. Dr. Taylor argued long and ably and finally said: "Now you as a chemist know that if you are dead you cannot bleed. Will you let me cut you slightly by way of experiment?" The monomaniac agreed and of course when an incision was made in his arm blood flowed instantly. "There," said Dr. Taylor. "That proves that you are not dead." "Oh, no," was the confident reply. "It merely shows that dead men can bleed."

Like Finding Money.

Finding health is like finding money—so think those who are sick. When you have a cough, cold, sore throat, or chest irritation, better act promptly like W. C. Barber, of Sandy Level, Va. He says: "I had a terrible chest trouble, caused by smoke and coal dust on my lungs; but, after finding no relief in other remedies, I was cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds." Greatest sale of any cough or lung medicine in the world. At Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro's. drug store; 50c and $1.00; guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

The Exclamation Point.

The exclamation point in conversation or in life betrays emotional lack of balance and waste of energy. Poise reserves itself for the right occasion and emphasizes important things without the need of exclamation. In other words, it saves its owner from unnecessary words or acts and prepares her for necessary ones. Unless one have an aim in life poise is never really attained. It is not mere repose. It is the collecting and balancing of one's forces.

A well known modern doctor asserts that a woman with a perfect bodily carriage is "always noted for exceptional power, either mental or physical, but generally both." If this is true of bodily poise, what power must come from the right poise and aim of the whole nature!

SMART WOMAN

Dropped Dynamite Into Well and Her Husband Came Out.

(The Star (Minn.) Cor. Chicago Chronicle.)

A fine example of wifely devotion and of mind in times of danger occurred on the Township in this county yesterday.

A 200-foot well had run dry on the farm of Judge Delehanty, in Killbuck, and Lawrence Tingley for $50 undertook the job of digging it down to water. He placed a windlass over the well and started operations by having his assistant, Timothy O'Rourke, let him down into the well in a bucket.

When the bucket was down about 15 feet from the top O'Rourke allowed his hands to slip on the handle of the windlass. The handle left his grasp, whirled around once struck him under the chin and knocked him senseless. The release of the windlass and its sudden stoppage again when the handle struck O'Rourke caused the rope to break and the bucket to fall to the bottom of the well. Tingley saving himself for the moment by hanging with his finger ends in the crevices of the stone wall.

But it could not be for long. The effort was too great and a minute more would see Tingley following the bucket to the bottom, down to certain death. At this moment Mrs. Tingley, bringing the men their lunch, arrived on the scene. She saw the motionless body of the assistant near the well, and, glancing down, perceived her husband clinging to the wall. She fully realized his peril. With vigorous arms she pulled the windlass away from the well, laid two strong planks close at hand, and, taking up a large piece of dynamite that was lying near, dropped it into the well. In a second it struck the bottom and exploded. There was parting of the earth as from an earthquake and then, in a cloud of dust, smoke and gas, Tingley shot out of the well like a cannon ball and up 20 feet into the air. Instantly his devoted wife laid the planks over the top of the well, and, descending, Tingley, uninjured, fell upon their elastic surface and was saved.

The hired man had a new full set of false teeth smashed by the blow on his chin, but the dynamite set the water in the well to flowing again, so Tingley bought his employee some new molars out of the $50 profit on the job.

For Thin Babies

Fat is of great account to a baby; that is why babies are fat. If your baby is scrawny, Scott's Emulsion is what he wants. The healthy baby stores as fat what it does not need immediately for bone and muscle. Fat babies are happy; they do not cry; they are rich; their fat is laid up for time of need. They are happy because they are comfortable. The fat surrounds their little nerves and cushions them. When they are scrawny those nerves are hurt at every ungente touch. They delight in Scott's Emulsion. It is as sweet as wholesome to them.

JAPS PROVE APT PUPILS.

By Watching Others the Little Brown Men Gathered Many Bits of Knowledge.

The first steamship the mikado owned, the officer said, had been bought at Birkenhead second hand from a mercantile company. They armed it any way at all and sent it out to Japan with a British crew. The Japanese had closely watched the maneuvers and methods of the French and other squadrons that had come to Japan at consular calls. They seemed delighted with their bargain. In their impatience to handle the steamship they dismissed the sailors and sent on board a native crew. These men peeled off their clothes to work. They did fairly well in the landlocked Osaka bay. One afternoon the officers and crews of the French warship could not make out why the Birkenhead steamship went around the bay, circling a narrow course at the top of its speed, and when it neared the flagship the commander of the steamship called out: "Something wrong with the engine! We can neither stop nor slow down!" "Leave off coaling and keep circling round, but further off from us!" sang out the French captain. This the Japs did. When they stopped a French frigate towed them to their moorings, and they relished the compliments they received on the way in which they handle the wheel.

The mikado, hearing of the occurrence, asked the French admiral if he could arrange to afford the crew of the steamship some naval instruction. He courteously told off for duty a lieutenant, a midshipman—now the old officer I talked to—and a dozen or so of the engineers and sailors. They brought back every evening amusing stories about their pupils, who insisted on taking hot baths daily in swabbing buckets. They continued to cast aside their clothes when hard work had to be got through. However, their zeal to learn, their close application, their quickness, amazed their instructors. They went to their tasks with minds fresh and retentive as a child's and the reasoning powers of clever adults. In six weeks they needed no more teaching, and they could out-strip Breton sailors in baffling the fury of a typhoon.

A Destructive Fire.

To draw the fire out of a burn, or heal a cut without leaving a scar, use DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A specific for piles. Get the genuine. J. L. Tucker, editor of the Harmonizer, Centre, Ala., writes: "I have used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve in my family for Piles, cuts and burns. It is the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it on hand." Sold by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro.

Sunflower Philosophy.

Don't be a misfortune teller. If the citizens are all right, the city will take care of itself. We are not ground down, and we do not believe other people are. If your friends should be asked this question about you: "Is he stingy?" what would they say? If the bride and groom are disappointed, they shouldn't show it under three weeks—the public doesn't expect it any sooner.

A man never knows till he gets out of the rut how many jolts and bruises he would have missed by staying in it.

About the worst nightmare that comes to an elderly woman is a dream that she has to raise her family over again by the modern way.

The most tiresome man is the man who thinks he is "a good talker." He has a lot of set phrases supposed to mean a longing for the Uplift, but which really mean nothing at all. Such a man is really another man doing nothing.

An Atchison young man, who can't tell Monday morning what became of the money paid him by his employer, Saturday night, is about to marry a girl who can remember to a penny just what she did with every dollar she has spent since she was ten. Friends are making bets; which disposition will rule in the settling to come?

THE news editor of the Madisonville Hustler brings up the rear with the statement that the Court of Appeals refused to grant Caleb Powers a reversal of the death sentence in his case. As a matter of fact the Court of Appeals on the 6th day of last December reversed the Powers case and remanded it to the trial

It's up to someone to answer the following interrogation from the Courier-Journal: "Does the Democratic State Committee propose to try to get along, temporarily, without the co-operation of Judge Hargis, or does it propose to hold its meetings in jail?" "What to do with Hargis" has been the subject of inquiry in Democratic ranks for sometime. A white "elephant!" Somebody help them let go.

JULES VERNE, the French novelist, died at his home in Amiens, France, March 24. He possessed a brilliant and original imagination, and was the most widely read writer of fiction of his day. His first books entered fields of thought looked upon as iridescent dreams, but which have been since explored by the scientist and philosopher. Among the subjects where his thoughts were the forerunners of facts are aerial and submarine navigation. He was a busy worker and therefore wrote many volumes of fiction most of which is destined to long endure.

Court House Chat.

Perhaps no man now living is as familiar with the early history, of Hartford, and Ohio county, as the Hon. H. P. Taylor.

Mr. Taylor has had better opportunity to learn than most of us, his grandfather, Harrison Taylor, was a pioneer and had the early history from the lips of the men whose struggles with wild beasts and wilder savages, are now almost forgotten.

Being a man of culture and observation the elder Harrison Taylor took pleasure in detailing to his young grandson the stories of courage, of privation and self-denial which made up the early history of Hartford, and with a boy's love for tales of adventure, the grandson cherished the unwritten history thus taught.

In May, 1799, a man named Stater in company with a party of fellow Germans from Pennsylvania started on the long trip down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans. At the month of what is now known as Red river, Stater left the flat boat to shoot a deer. The deer fled, and Stater pursued it, lost his way and was left alone in the great wilderness, his comrades thinking him dead.

After the first unreasoning fit of terror and despair passed away, the man started to wend his way on foot through the solitude to Pennsylvania. Days of misery and nights of apprehension succeeded each other. Footsore, weakened by hunger and sickened by the mist and damp from the bottoms Stater left the river and branched out after crossing Green river.

While stumbling through the dense cane on No creek his ears heard the tinkle of a cow bell, and he followed her with his last remaining strength until she came to what is now Hartford.

Only one house stood here then, and it stood where A. T. Nall's residence is, and was occupied by a German family. Stater was taken in and his wants ministered to because in those days a white face was a friend's face.

But alas and alack! With the passing of old trials, there passed many of the elder virtues, and now it takes good eyes to tell by the aid of electric light whether the face be that of a friend or foe.

The leaves had not begun to fall but there was something doing on the west steps leading up to the Court House. Jim DeWeese was explaining to a crowd of College students that there was, in point of fact, no such creature as a toad frog—that it was either a frog or a toad; Capt. Keown was relating some experiences which he never had, and Lis Ragland was pretending to listen to each, and trying to look interested. Then, Judge Wilson offered to explain the superiority of the Plymouth Rock chicken over the Brown Leghorns or any other breed on earth, and one by one the crowd vanished, as though ashamed of their foolish boasting or parade of idle learning.

Hypnotized

"There isn't anybody living who can hypnotize me," said her husband, "You cannot afford to run a tilt against science." "But I deny that it is science. What has ever been proved by hypnotism? It is foolish to argue about it, for I will not even admit that there is such a thing. The shrewd people who go about the country giving exhibitions of their power are always in collusion with some one in the audience—you know that yourself, Ned."

"Nothing of the kind," retorted Ned, as Mrs. Darl called her husband. "It is a science that is yet in its infancy, and there are only a few individuals who have the hypnotic power and are able to throw less positive subjects into a trance. But I have seen it done, and it is wonderful—wonderful."

"What did you see?" "I saw a young man climb walls like a cat, drink milk out of a snail, catch a mouse and then wash his face and hands as a cat does. And when he came out of the trance he had no idea that he had done any of these things or that he had even lost consciousness."

"Hum," said Mrs. Darl incredulously. "I don't believe a word of it. If he did all that you said he did he was simply a conjuror. And what good can such a faculty bring to science, I should like to know? Where is the scientific value in acting like a cat or a monkey?" "Why, don't you see, dear, it is the verification of a theory?"

"No, I do not see. And I am not sure that I would believe it if I did see it. The whole stock in trade of these hypnotizers is the power of producing an illusion. I defy any of them to hypnotize me."

"I had intended asking you to go with me to the exhibition tonight." "And be transmogrified into a cat? No, indeed! If I make a sacrifice of myself in the name of science it must be for something worth while."

"I have an idea," said Mr. Darl suddenly. "Suppose, since Mohammed won't go to the mountain, that the mountain comes to Mohammed. The hypnotist can come here after the entertainment, and we will invite a few neighbors in, and he can give an exhibition of his powers. How does that idea strike you?"

"Favorably, Ned. There are the Rusts and the Pebbles and Dr. Smith and his wife and Cousin Fanny and her husband. You can let them know, and I will order refreshments, and we will have an evening of hypnotism. It will begin late, but we can find other amusement until your hypnotic operator comes."

Mrs. Darl had everything arranged—her house in beautiful order and herself gorgeous in a dress of ruby velvet, which was far too fine for the occasion, but was worn as a piece of resistance, she having read that velvet resisted hypnotic influence.

The neighbors and relatives came, a merry company, and the time passed in an animated discussion upon the power of hypnotism, one friend going so far in research as to visit the library and look up that wonderful story, "The House of the Seven Gables," and read aloud to attentive listeners a passage from the weird history of Alice Pyncheon.

"He spoke, and Alice responded with a soft, subdued inward acquiescence and a bending of her form toward him, like the flame of a torch when it indicates a gentle draft of air. He beckoned with his hand, and, rising from her chair, the proud Alice approached him. He waved her back, and, retreating, Alice sank again into her seat."

"She is mine," said Matthew

Maule. "Mine by the right of the strongest spirit."

"Oh, that was mesmerism," said Mrs. Darl as the reading ceased. "And what is mesmerism?" asked one of the company. "I think that it is an unexplainable hypnotism, if it is not the same thing. Oh, here they are now! Let us hold on to our chairs or we may be spirited away to China. I for one am afraid."

"I am not," said the queenly hostess as she swept forward in velvet and diamonds to meet her husband and his guest.

A pale, composed looking man accompanied Mr. Darl, and he did not seem surprised by the elegance of his hostess or flushed by the critical gaze of the company.

After the introductions were made and conversation became general Mrs. Darl slipped into the hall and beckoned to her husband, who immediately joined her. Then she whispered in his ear:

"If—if by any possibility he should be able to hypnotize me you will not let him make me do anything ridiculous?"

"My dear Leona, how can you imagine such a possibility? But if you have any fear—"

"Fear!" echoed his wife scornfully in a stage whisper. "You will see that he cannot make the slightest impression on me." And she went back to the parlor and found one of her guests climbing the piano to escape an imaginary bear that was pursuing him. A few passes and he was restored to his normal condition, looking very foolish.

There were some amusing and some perplexing exhibitions of the professor's power; then the company followed host and hostess to the dining room, where a generous spread awaited them. Mrs. Darl was rather silent. Her test would be the next one, and she watched the wily hands of the young professor as if his secret lay in them. But they were harmlessly busy with the sandwiches. His face was quite noncommittal too. What was the power he held of reducing the will to a mere blank? She would soon know.

Back in the parlor, Mrs. Darl seated herself under the brilliant chandelier.

"Not there," said the professor. But she did not intend to yield to any command of his and said quietly:

"I prefer to sit here." "Then I cannot hypnotize you." "Oh, you acknowledge that it is only under certain conditions that this great power can be displayed?"

"Certainly, there are conditions that must be complied with. I am positive, and you are negative, but you are a very difficult subject because you are resisting me with all your might."

Mrs. Darl looked reproachfully at her husband and said in the dumb alphabet of the married, "You have told him."

He flashed back in the same language, "I have not," and she moved in accordance with the wish of the professor and sat with her back to the light. Some of the company were removed to remote parts of the room, but a few, including Mr. Darl, stood near.

"Look into my eyes," said the professor. "Permit me." And he took her hands and pressed the thumbs gently.

"It is like being in a dentist's chair," said Mrs. Darl, with a little forced laugh. Then she attempted to rise, struggling slightly, but continued to look into the eyes of the hypnotizer until in the place of two eyes she saw twenty. Then she asserted her will and shook herself free.

"I—told—you—I—could—not—be—hypnotized," she said. Her voice sounded strange and far away. "How queer I feel! Staring so long has made me dizzy."

"Drink this," said Mr. Darl, giving his wife a glass of water. She drank it, then rose to her feet and said she felt as well as ever.

"Where is the professor?" she asked. "I expect he has lost faith in his science."

"He was here a moment ago," said her Cousin Fanny anxiously. "He thought he had succeeded in hypnotizing you, Leona. Were you not unconscious?"

"Not for one moment," said Mrs. Darl triumphantly. "He held my thumbs until they were numb—why—where—Ned?"

"What is it, Leona?" he asked in surprise at her peculiar tone. "Where are my diamonds?"

There was a startled exclamation from every one present. Mrs. Darl stood there bereft of every jewel she possessed. Not a single one of her gems which had flashed on her fingers, at her throat, in her ears, was now visible. Dazed, she held up her ringless hands and said:

"Is this a joke? What does it mean? Where are my diamonds?" "Where is the professor?" "Search the house!"

"Send for the police!"

But the professor had left for parts unknown, and with him went Mrs. Darl's diamonds, and neither the police nor the Darls ever saw or heard of them or him again. But one thing was in his favor. "Not only had he successfully hypnotized Mrs. Darl, but, as Mr. Darl admitted, he must have hypnotized the whole company in order to bring his hypnotic scheme to such a climax."

And Mrs. Darl is at last a convert to both the theory and practice of the occult science and a firm believer in the power of the hypnotic will.—Mrs. M. L. Rayne in Free Press.

In Search of the Unusual.

Donald's ten-year-old idea of what may properly be offered one's guests was well formed. He knew exactly what he had a right to expect. So at the first party which his youthful eyes had looked upon save under the watchful gaze of the maternal chaperon he never hesitated a moment when they passed him some sliced boiled lump.

"Now," said he, with more of sincerity than polish. "I can get that to hum."
